

GP Remarks

Our chapter has a lot of great things to look forward to in the upcoming winter quarter. The Looking Ahead Speakers Series will follow on its success last year with two events in the winter: on Tuesday, January 17, Ann Livermore, the Executive Vice President for the Technology Solutions Group at Hewlett-Packard, will be speaking on campus; and on Monday, February 13, we will be hosting Carlos Ghosn, CEO of Nissan Motor Co. We are continuing our community service efforts this quarter by organizing several sports days with the Boys & Girls Club, a blood drive at the house, and a Habitat for Humanity build. We also have a fun social calendar ahead, including our ski trip, weekly poker games, movie nights, and IM sports.

Our chapter will welcome six new members into the fraternity at the conclusion of the winter pledge education period with our initiation ceremony on Saturday, February 11. Over the next several weeks, our pledges will be learning about the history of our fraternity, the organization and structure of our chapter, and getting to know both our undergraduate members and alumni. We look forward to the chance to celebrate their initiation into the fraternity with any alumni that can attend the Founder's Day dinner on Friday, February the 17.

Phi Psi 500 Community Service Award

This year, the fraternity decided to offer its first-ever community service award to members of the Stanford community. We want to reward people for living up to our service motto, "The great joy of serving others," the ideal which our founders aspired to and lived by. After brainstorming with the Haas Center for Public Service on campus, we chose to give two $500 awards, one to a freshman and one to a sophomore, since most service awards available are given to upperclassmen. The $500 dollar amount is a reference to each Phi Psi chapter's commitment to do 500 hours of community service a year.

We released the application this past week and advertised all around campus (see the flyer on the next page). There has been a great initial show of enthusiasm from potential applicants, asking for more information and the application within a matter of hours after we posted flyers. After the application is due in late February, we plan to hold a reception for the applicants to award the winners their prizes. We are all excited about this new opportunity to reward the community and find people aligned with our ideals.

Speakers Series

The chapter welcomes two guest speakers this winter, beginning with Ann Livermore, Executive Vice President of HP's Technology Solutions Group, on Tuesday, January 17th. We are then pleased to welcome Carlos Ghosn, the CEO & President of Nissan Motor Company, on February 13th. The chapter began the Looking Ahead speakers series in 2004 to bring high-profile speakers to all-campus events, and hosted a standing-room only crowd for Jen-Hsun Huang, the CEO, President and Co-Founder of NVIDIA Corporation. For more information, please visit our website at <http://lookingahead.stanford.edu>.

COMMUNITY SERVICE AWARD

Freshmen and sophomores: apply for a $500 award by telling us why you do community service and what you love about the experience.

The deadline for submitting applications is February 27, 2006. Freshmen and sophomores are eligible for the award, and two $500 scholarships will be given out, one to a member of each class. To get the application, go to <http://phipsi.stanford.edu> or email john.rutherford@stanford.edu.

Phi Psi is a social fraternity that emphasizes excellence in many areas, including community service. Phi Psi was founded nationally in 1852 with the motto “the great joy of serving others.” Our Stanford chapter works with the service organizations Habitat for Humanity, Urban Ministries, and the Boys & Girls Club.
